Letter from the President

Dear Donors and Friends:

I hope you and your loved ones are healthy and enjoying activities that were restricted during the COVID-19 pandemic. While we have continued operating throughout this global crisis, it has been a period of time like none other. We have traversed many adjustments in how we serve students and the community to maintain our commitment to our mission to provide transformational educational opportunities.

From July 1, 2019 through June 30, 2020 we successfully adapted to a rapidly changing environment driven by the pandemic and calls for social justice. The Minneapolis College team reinvented processes and transitioned to many new ways of operating. Some of these reinventions will remain a part of our landscape as we embed our continuous improvement model into our long-term operations.

I want to share some highlights of how our campus community navigated and persisted through these challenging times. Within the span of a week, 500-plus employees moved to remote work mid-semester. Our faculty developed new delivery methods for teaching and learning while our staff helped our students adapt and thrive in this new, mostly online, environment. This allowed us to continue delivering high-quality, affordable academics and realize accomplishments such as:

- More than 800 course sections moved to alternate delivery with approximately two-thirds of course sections being offered entirely online and more being offered using a blend of online and face-to-face classes.
- Our Spring 2020 Semester nursing cohort had a remarkable licensure pass rate of 94 percent, one of the highest in Minnesota.

- The Minneapolis College School of Liberal Arts and Cultures developed one of Minnesota State's first zero-textbook cost Associate of Arts programs.
- The Minneapolis College Foundation awarded more than 200 scholarships totaling nearly $500,000.
- Our Finance Department received and distributed $2.3 million in Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act funding to eligible students.

During this period, we also adopted a new five-year Strategic Plan with the following two priorities:

- Minneapolis College will eliminate equity gaps in educational outcomes.
- Minneapolis College will improve student outcomes from initial exploration to retention and graduation.

By demonstrating our ability to nimbly adapt to serve our students, we reaffirmed our institution's role as an anchor in the community and our commitment to positively impacting socio-economic gaps through our Equity Statement. While much work has been done, much work remains to be done. We will continue building on our pledge to becoming an antiracist institution, understanding that it is a journey, not a destination.

We know our students rely on us to help manage ongoing pandemic paralysis, online fatigue and significant financial hardships. We are grateful for your support as we work together to support our community's most vulnerable population as they strive for higher credentials, better employment and to have a voice in the broader conversations that will create a better tomorrow for those who come after us. We appreciate your ongoing commitment to philanthropy to help our students persist and we look forward to our continued partnership in improving educational experiences for students.

Thank you for your support of our mission and our role in the community.

Sincerely,

Sharon J. Pierce, Ed.D.

Letter from the Executive Director

Dear Donors and Friends,

What an unusual year to start a new job! While the pandemic kept me from meeting many of you in person, I have enjoyed getting to know many of you through virtual events, Zoom meetings, telephone calls and email.

You stepped up in a big way! The circumstances of the past year amplified your generosity and commitment to Minneapolis College students. This year amidst all the challenges thrown our way, together we were raised more than a half million dollars for scholarships, emergency support for students, support for programs and unrestricted gift revenue.

Your generosity is leveling the playing field so everyone in our community has access to the transformative power of education. And, there are even bigger opportunities on the horizon as we find meaningful ways to bridge equity gaps in our community. I invite you to reach out to any one of us on the Advancement team — Amy McCarthy, Pashell Johnson or me to learn about the perfect way for you to get involved at the College in the coming year.

We are all looking forward to being back on campus and celebrating the impact of your generosity with you in person very soon. Thank you for all you do to make dreams come true!

With gratitude,

Letter from the Minneapolis College Foundation Incoming President

Dear Donors and Friends,

It is with a grateful and humble heart that I write to thank you for your steadfast support of Minneapolis College and its students through your gifts to the Minneapolis College Foundation. Your generosity has carried us through a difficult and challenging year of navigating a devastating pandemic and the murder of George Floyd, a Minneapolis tragedy that sparked unrest and a renewed commitment to social justice, equity and inclusion here and across the globe.

Over the past year, the Minneapolis College Foundation has served nearly 300 students with scholarships and even more with Random Acts of Kindness and emergency grants. Combined, this support empowered students to persist and succeed in their individual academic pursuits.

The Foundation is proud to work alongside Minneapolis College to support the mission and strategic priorities of the College. To this end, we worked with the College to introduce a new scholarship application and award process and several new programs. Bridging the Equity Gap is an initiative aimed at eliminating educational inequalities and creating opportunities for young inner-city men to elevate their socio-economic status. We have an ambitious goal to raise $2 million dollars to support this effort over the next five years.

Other key fundraising priorities continue to be focused on direct support across the College. The Minneapolis College Scholarship and Random Acts of Kindness Emergency funds offset the costs of everything from tuition, transportation and fees to one-time emergency expenses to the technology tools and equipment needed to pursue a degree at Minneapolis College. This support truly makes a difference by increasing retention and graduation by as much as 98%.

Thank you for your continued support. I invite you to reach out to me, other Directors on the Foundation Board or the Director of the Foundation, Beverly Wadsworth, and her team to connect your philanthropic goals with opportunities at Minneapolis College. I look forward to seeing many of you again in person in the coming year.

With gratitude,

Creating an Environment Where Students Thrive

In 2020, Minneapolis College awarded 275 scholarships totaling $429,000 to students, providing funds for academic-related expenses. In addition to tuition and fees, scholarships provide for books, materials, tools, equipment and transportation.

Minneapolis College is dedicated to removing the obstacles that prevent many of our friends and neighbors from pursuing a higher education. We are committed to equity and inclusion, supporting diverse learning environments, providing paramount service and connecting students to comprehensive resources to support their dreams.

CONNECTING STUDENTS WITH SCHOLARSHIPS

"We recognize financial constraints can stand in the way for many people," said Heidi Aldes, Dean of Enrollment Management, who is committed to helping alleviate the financial burden of a college education. "We have scholarships available from nonprofit foundations, government agencies or employers and private donors available to students in need. Our goal is to make it easy to connect with financial support."

Joshua Hage is an example of one student at the College who was able to connect with a range of financial support. He applied for and received a scholarship from the Minnesota Legislature, a Lions Heart Scholarship, a Kopp Presidential Scholarship and an Alice Grant. "Without this assistance, funding my education would not have been possible," said Hage who is studying Addiction Counseling and credits faculty for helping him connect to available scholarships.

"Research shows there is a negative impact on academic performance when full-time students work more than 25 hours a week," said Aldes. "If we can connect students to financial resources so they don't have to work full-time, they will reap the rewards with higher success."

PROVIDING COMPREHENSIVE STUDENT SERVICES

Minneapolis College is known for its commitment to providing comprehensive services to its students and eliminating red tape. The Student Services department, for example, provides a one-stop location for registration, records, financial aid, billing, payment and veterans benefits. Additionally, academic advisors provide one-on-one support to students to connect them to resources, complete the admissions process and encourage success along the way. The College is also providing grace to students who have account balances from previous semesters, enabling registration and tuition deferment to further alleviate financial burdens.

“My family and I are deeply thankful for your generosity. By awarding me a scholarship you have truly lightened my financial burden and the stress it has caused in my life. This allows me to focus on the most important aspect of school, learning and studying. Your generosity has inspired me to keep going and has restored my faith in others...that despite of all hardships, there is still kindness in this world. Thank you for making a difference in my life.”

Jesica

Impact — In Their Words

“I am a single mother of five children. The Random Acts of Kindness Award paid for my books. This award not only helped me, but my five children. I cannot give up because I have my children counting on me. Thank you for helping me follow my dreams.”

Sharee

“I plan to continue to work hard toward my goal of becoming a nurse. After receiving my registered nurse license and graduating from Minneapolis College, I plan to further continue my education and receive my bachelors. Being an undocumented, DACA and first-generation student has always brought its difficulties in which I work hard to overcome. I would never be able to overcome them myself without the help of scholarships. One thing I always say and carry with me is that knowledge is power and no matter where I go, whether I have something or nothing, that knowledge will always be something I have.”

Star Scholar

“My mother lost her job. I am working, going to school and trying to save to attend a four-year college in the fall. The Random Act of Kindness Award helped me make ends meet while I struggled through a difficult time of life financially.”

Caroline

Star Scholars and Power of YOU — Programs and Mentorships Empower Students to Succeed

The Star Scholars and Power of YOU programs are designed to help people who dream of attending college by covering the cost of tuition and fees for qualifying students. In addition to funding, each program surrounds students with wraparound services to help ensure academic success.

STAR SCHOLARS

The Star Scholars Program is designed for the student who has a status in the U.S. of DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals), TPS (Temporary Protected Status) or U Visa.

"Thanks to its generous donors, students like me with a lot of desire to keep moving forward can make our dreams come true," said Rosa* who began her journey last fall as a Nursing major, earning a 3.2 GPA. She was awarded a scholarship for undocumented students and hopes to serve underrepresented communities after she graduates next year. "Being an undocumented student is a challenge, but I can't let challenges stop me. I have to strive hard to find ways to continue my education."

Minneapolis College believes everyone deserves an equal opportunity to improve their lives through education and hard work. We are proud that our campus was home to more than 200 undocumented students like Rosa this year. Without permanent legal status or a path to citizenship, these scholars are not eligible for federal student financial aid in any form, including loans or grants.

*Sensitive to her undocumented status, we are not listing her real name.

POWER OF YOU

The Power of YOU program is available to qualifying high school students or recent graduates in the Twin Cities who have not yet attended college and have a family income lower than $55,000. Intensive student advising, community engagement and leadership opportunities are available to participants. An advisor is assigned to each student until they complete their degree, providing assistance in mitigating barriers toward the student's academic goals.

"The scholarship has taught me how to... make better priorities, perform better and make myself happy." said Power of YOU student Keondre Jordan

Minneapolis College is proud of its 288 dedicated Power of YOU students who rose to the challenges facing our world this year. We recognize how the strength of our community is enriched when students have an opportunity to pursue a higher education. The support of donors makes programs like Star Scholars and Power of YOU possible.

Pandemic Inspires Innovation Across the College

PUTTING COMPUTERS IN THE HANDS OF STUDENTS

Limited access to state-of-the-art technology can be a significant hurdle for many of Minneapolis College students. And in early 2020, COVID-19 changed the trajectory of our world and immediately made it difficult for students to access computers on campus. The College knew it needed to do something different to ensure students had access to laptops, internet service and specialized software.

To meet these important technology needs, Minneapolis College started its Digital Learning Program (DLP) putting fully configured and supported laptop computers, equipped with the latest software to meet educational demands, in the hands of students. The program ensures students have secure, reliable and supportable technology.

Students who have their own device can study on campus, in the community or in their own home. This program provides an equitable learning environment and experience and allows students to balance school alongside work and family.

Minneapolis College encourages faculty to reduce or remove costs for its students whenever possible. One of the ways this happens is when faculty use technology in place of textbooks. The DLP then provides students the opportunity to invest in a lease to own laptop, providing them the technology to be successful in College and beyond.

Seven programs at the College require a laptop and the DLP ensures the laptop students lease for these programs have the software and support needed. Architectural Technology is one example of a program that requires a robust platform with specialized technology that is extremely expensive. The DLP is able to eliminate some of the expense through this program and pass the savings on to students.

Furthering its commitment to access to technology, the Internet Essentials Program recognizes many families depend on the internet, whether at school or at home, so they can do homework, search for jobs, access financial or government services and much more. Minneapolis College partnered with Comcast to offer free Internet Essentials services to eligible students.

Supporting the ability for students to connect, U.S. Bank provided $8,000 toward an equipment loan program helping the College provide 25 laptops (Winbooks) to IT students in need.

Minneapolis College Graduates — Poised to Make an Impact

It took resiliency and grit to cross the finish line toward their academic achievements during the COVID-19 pandemic. With this accomplishment behind them, graduates join a dynamic community of tens of thousands of Minneapolis College alumni, trailblazers who are changing the world. Khalil Yasin and Meriem LeClair are two such graduates who are moving forward with great momentum.

KHALIL YASIN

It's been more than three years since Khalil Yasin has seen or felt the presence of his family. On January 10, 2017, he moved to Minnesota from Somalia eager to begin his educational journey. Only 11 days after moving here, he encountered and was heavily affected by an anti-Muslim movement that prohibits Muslims from entering America.

Three years later, overcoming many difficult obstacles, Khalil Yasin is a first generation high school and college graduate. "I have nothing but gratitude and thankfulness for everyone who contributed to my success," said Khalil, who expresses thanks to his parents who sacrificed their youth, hopes and dreams so their seven children could achieve a better life than they were faced with in Somalia. "I am also grateful to Minneapolis College, the coursework and the faculty and staff that have helped shape me."

Supported by a U.S. Bank IT Scholarship and inspired by coursework and faculty, Khalil plans to pursue a law degree. "Minneapolis College made me worthy of dreaming and achieving."

MERIEM LECLAIR — GREATNESS IS YOUR DESTINY

Meriem LeClair questioned her own strength and potential many times since she was a small rebellious child in Africa. She came to America craving an education that would set her free. And despite struggling with mental illness and financial hardship, she blossomed into her uncensored true self on the campus of Minneapolis College.

“When students graduate, they may feel how Dr. King felt on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, like when you received your first paycheck, when you were rewarded a scholarship or when you felt genuinely recognized for who you are and your true potential beyond the worst mistake you ever made, your status, your race, your gender or national origin,” said Meriem. “The feeling and the dream are one. After working hard and suffering somehow there will be success and hope not just for you, but for all those who are touched by your story.”

Meriem gives thanks to the Minneapolis College Foundation for offering her the right to an education at no cost, asking for nothing in return. During her time on campus, she met educators who eased her pain with their kindness and understanding. She brought her personal challenges to campus where she was offered guidance, friendship and a home to turn to.

“It took me three years to finish my degree. Three years of finding ways out of darkness. Three years of finding strength and pride in my voice on campus. Three years of thriving in meeting students and staff. Three years of building ethical principals with the goal of making the world a better place,” said Meriem. “My heart is deeply grateful forever.”

Although Meriem almost lost hope on many occasions, each time she was brought back on her feet through resources and people on campus. “Not all women, especially those living in socio politically unstable regions are fortunate enough to find a similar place,” said Meriem, who believes greatness is a destiny. “People all over the world are brought to their knees every day due to viruses, war and violence. And then denied a second chance at the borders. We need each other the way I needed Minneapolis College.”

Meriem sheds her fear because she believes there will be help for those who ask for it, friends for those healing from trauma, a Minnesota for those craving acceptance, an America for those seeking their potential and a Minneapolis College for everyone who wishes to be freed through the powers of knowledge and service.

Donor Spotlight, Honoring the Legacy of LeRoy “Lee” Kopp

The legacy of LeRoy “Lee” Kopp and his family will remain visible throughout the Minneapolis College campus long after his October 9, 2020 passing. The time, energy and resources of Lee Kopp and The Kopp Family Foundation remain a lifeblood for Minneapolis College and its students who have been provided the opportunity to reach their educational goals as a result of the support they received.

When you walk across the Minneapolis College campus, situated on the edge of Downtown Minneapolis, you will see Lee’s legacy in Kopp Hall, constructed with funding from $2.3 million in contributions to Minneapolis College made by The Kopp Family Foundation since 1995. Look closer at the students on campus and you will see it in the look of determination on their faces. Minneapolis College students have been awarded $1.1 million in Kopp Presidential Scholarships participating in the Random Acts of Kindness program. The emergency fund helps students meet basic needs including one-time emergency expenses, transportation costs, food insecurities and the cost of taking specific exams to become certified in their field after graduation.

The Kopp Family Foundation has a long and steadfast commitment to encouraging students to attend college as demonstrated by providing nearly $1 million in scholarships each year to high school and college students.

In a 2019 interview, Lee said, “I am pleased to see the crop of students chosen, usually coming from needy backgrounds with hard working couples or single parents.”

Lee and Barbara Kopp and the Kopp Family Foundation have been generously giving to Minneapolis College since July of 1996 with gifts totaling more than $2.2 million.

Like many Minneapolis College students, faculty and staff, Lee was the first in his family to graduate from college. His commitment to the College has helped students who otherwise would be unable to pursue their higher education goals.

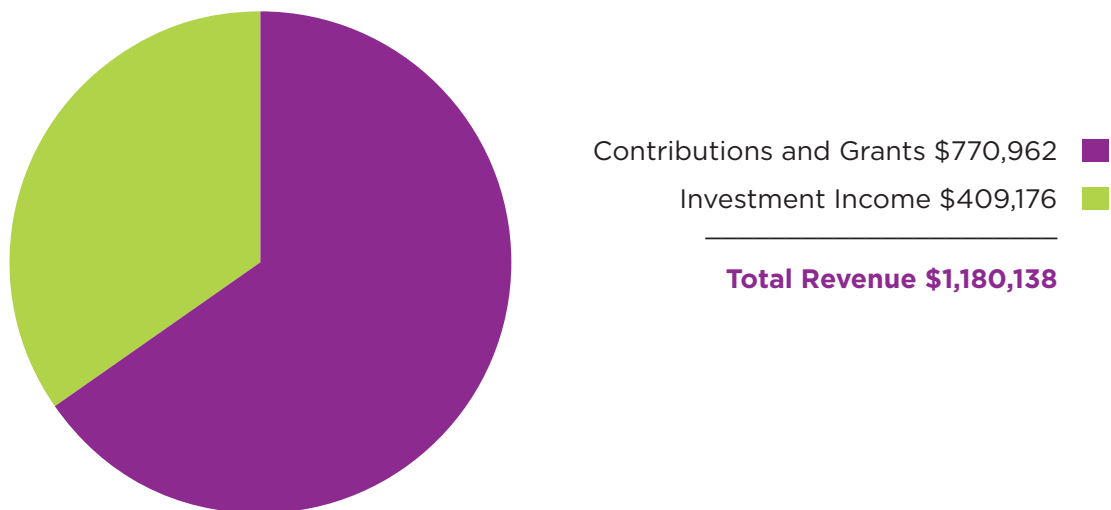

Lee founded Investment Advisors in 1990 after a highly successful 30-year career with Dain Bosworth, Inc. The Kopp Family Foundation was established in 1986.

The College recognizes the generosity of spirit Leroy “Lee” Kopp and the Foundation provides its students and expresses its extreme gratitude for the support. That spirit has enabled hundreds of students to attend Minneapolis College.
